General Comment

AI as it has been called lately is not intelligent. It is simply a probability engine that gives words that are likely to sound like they are the answer to questions posed of it. It is a trick. Executives, governments, and regular people alike have all been duped so that some people can cash in. Didn't be tricked. Didn't fall for it. It's not the future. It's a grift. It robs creatives of their livelihood. It can't explain itself. It removes blame from people who should be making decisions so that they can do immoral things. It is a national security risk.
