General Comment

These AI companies have no interest in the benefit of the country or its citizens, especially those who have dedicated their lives to creative pursuits that provide a wide array of benefits to our society as a whole. This AI technology is speculative and primarily fueled by hype and the desire to somehow create profit, all without any concern for the backs they may be stepping on. Such companies should be held to high standards and more strict regulation instead of being given free rein to consume every piece of media in existence to fuel its failing experiment. Do not bow to their wishes while they throw everyday citizens, artists, and small businesses under the bus. Do not reward them for encouraging people to discard individual thought and hard work, rejecting the pursuit to develop your own skills to create, and instead urging people to rely on a machine to do the thinking and production for them. It is a stain on art, education, production, and free thought.
