General Comment

“AI” is a blight on our society, providing no use in any conceivable measure while contributing massively to waste, environmental impact, and theft of intellectual property (IP). IP, in particular, has been aggressively protected by the courts in favor of the companies and persons in possession of the copyrights that protect this IP. No exceptions have ever been given and peoples very lives have been completely ruined by the lengths to which copyright violations have been prosecuted. Exceptions should not be given to some company with some sort of “promise” to contribute to society when they have not proven within any stretch of imagination or reality that their Large Language Models and other “AI” products can produce anything that resembles a factual statement, uniquely creative output, or human-like thought. These “AI” companies are a sham, a grift, a snake oil con. Give no quarter. No exception.
