General Comment

To those it concerns,

I am a programmer and a Canadian. The policies of the US are a great concern to me as a Canadian, especially ones that concern Large Language Models (LLMs, which, for the purposes of this comment, will also refer to "AI" in general). Our countries are close and tightly coupled.

Many of my friends are in the US, and many of them are artists, writers, and programmers. We are just individuals who have few protections from large companies taking our work and using it to "train" their LLMs. I do not want my creative work to be used in these "AIs" without my permission. I do not want to see my friends creative works absorbed into "AI" without their permission.

Please strongly consider the ramifications of broadening what data can be used from individuals without permission.

Please consider what protections of creatives it erodes.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
a concerned Canadian
