General Comment

"burdensome requirements"?

Regulations for public safety, well being and protection of intellectual property are not "burdensome".

Safeguards against a company scrapping any/all data produced and owned by other persons for profit are not "burdensome".

The kind of open range landscape these companies are pushing for will only mean no reasonable person or company will feel safe to create any digital content or have any digital/online presence.

No regulations means the internet as we have known it will be gone.
