General Comment

Allowing for AI without restraints to plunder the nations resources without recourse to Americans would violate their constitutional rights and freedoms as well as destroy American businesses.

Allowing AI to exist without rails would not only impact copyright law but patent law as well. This would not only negatively impact American artists, businesses, and corporations (as anything American corporations and lobbyists fight to protect would be fair game as well), but also the economy.

Allowing AI to operate as desired would have the opposite effect on national security as well as access to secure files both civilian and private and military to train would allow a backdoor for other countries to penetrate and access files and concepts and more of the nations various military and security systems.

These companies that operate these AI models do not care about the country or its interests. They will say whatever they need to in order to get what they want. They just want unrestricted, unregulated, unanswerable power and access the what mages America great: the minds and creative efforts of its peoples, businesses, inventions, and technology. Do not let them have it.
