General Comment

AI companies cannot deliver on their false promises, and so they are trying to destroy the right of creators to control what happens with their own work. This will not help anyone in the US besides the CEOs of AI companies. It will hurt many people, both the creators who it would now be legal to steal from, and the people who are subjected to the continued deluge of AI slop. AI companies do not actually have any ideas for how to improve their models. They just don't want to face any consequences for the stealing they have done.
