General Comment

The use of so-called generative AI steals work from countless hardworking Americans. AI does not create, it steals, it scrapes, it impersonates real writers, artists, photographers, and other creators without attribution or compensation.

Because it can only scrape, appropriate, and synthesize what others have already created, the work AI produces will always be substandard, a mere copy of a copy. It does not create jobs, it steals them and gives back shoddy approximations. It can't accurately answer questions, only respond to requests with carbon copy responses.

The tremendous water and power used by AI's plagiarism machines are more than the United States can provide and we will never see an adequate return on an investment in it.

I urge you to prevent the use of AI in scraping, copying, and destroying the copyrighted works and intellectual property of workers in America and beyond. Thank you.
