General Comment

AI is little more than a grift perpetrated by tech bros and corporations that has not only thus far failed to meet expectations and turn a profit, it has already disrupted the lives and livelihoods of countless Americans in creative industries. It is an exploitative, regurgitative technology devoid of any actual creativity and is thus antithetical to the ideas of progress and innovation that the United States upholds as tenets of business. The only things it is good for are wasting precious natural resources and putting Americans out of work.
