See <https://newsletter.martingeddes.com/p/can-ai-be-programmed-to-become-godly> By Martin Geddes Also see <https://github.com/lltfm/openness> By G. Damien Lance AI is not an isolated issue. It's one component in a rapid journey toward globally transforming humans into remotely-controllable machine-things. Should leaders in law and public policy accept whatever's possible simply because it's possible? Maybe that question can be a guideline for the unprecedented challenges technology presents for humanity. What the technologists frankly tell us they're doing is: REPLACING HUMANS. Eventually. People like you. They tell us they'll be done with this project by 2050. The project-leaders and lab-workers and lab-funders and industry cheerleaders themselves say this. Names for, or components of, the complex that AI is just one part of include: biodigital convergence, The Great Reset, Agenda 2030, The Singularity, transhumanism, bio-robotics, posthumanism, cyborgization, neurotechnology, synthetic biology, augmented Reality (AR), cybernetics, nanotechnology, digital twin. It isn't science fiction. They're working on replacing your progeny with artificial creatures. Your children, and your descendants. Your body. Your thoughts. Your soul. Your food. And your pets. And farm animals. And their food. And all living things. People have already invented technologies for turning people like you into a molecular biological machine. They're now implementing those technologies. Now. They tell us the technology they're making is intended to turn people like you and your kids into machines. They tell us they can or will be able to attach you and them to a wireless network that is now in early stages of functioning as a worldwide molecular biological machine. Inventors who work in labs somewhere themselves say they're working on expanding--one individual at a time---this self-powered, self-replicating living biological network of individual transhumans... until the human species is replaced by the inventors' artificial trans-human, trans-species products. And until the course of evolution is permanently altered. According to these lab-worker teams, no one is even debating the fact that these technologies are CURRENTLY being used to try to get YOU -- body and soul -- irreversibly blended into "the internet of things." Things. You-plugged-in. As a thing. Whether you want to be or not. You can easily find thousands of fact-sources like patents, speeches, public presentations, and published reports in peer-reviewed journals. Many hundreds of references to hundreds of direct sources tell us what scientists, technologists, and manufacturers themselves say about their artifice. They openly, publicly tell anyone who will listen what the technology is and can do so far, what its components are, how the components function, how they function together, how the parts of a transformed remotely-controllable former-human transceiver-biorobot parallel computer architecture most of us are familiar with, and how they're working on extending this technology much, much further. It's what they themselves say about what they're now doing. Infusing folks like you and me with nano-size material so bio-robots that result can be remotely operated. Other ingredients and components of the system include graphene and reduced graphene oxide, luminescent Luciferase from sea-life and insects, hydrogel, wireless-radio tech---aka 5G/nextG mobile-phone signal---and other things that are essential to the whole bio-machine's successful operation. This technology is real. It's here. Via reduced graphene oxide, it's being quietly integrated into EVERYONE'S bodies. Now. Did you know this? Did you consent? You have no choice about being transformed into a machine if you don't even know it's being done to you. What matters most? Your own life and soul? Your kids' lives and souls? Their kids' lives and souls? Human life. All living things. The course of evolution. Permanent protection of living things in their original state. Protection of products of incomprehensible origins. From eternity and for eternity. OR... Permanent replacement of human beings with an artificial species. Permanent damage of living things by the stuff that inspires science-fiction fantasies, and that thrills mere unrestrained, unsupervised, imperfect, limited mortals having fun in the playgrounds of their private earthly laboratories. Now that so many of us know these facts, not-knowing about what's going on and what's at stake is no longer an excuse for failing to confront it -- with law and policy, economics, technology, and whatever it takes to protect our children and the future from man-made hell on earth. Without local oversight, companies like these find and privately buy or rent small squares of land on which to build a tower. Data-transmission equipment is stacked on different levels at the tops of the towers. Each level is rented out to carriers like T-Mobile and Verizon. The higher the level, the higher the rent.
