I'm writing about the proposed AI Action Plan. AI development should not be done in a way that is reckless, and copyright should be respected in its development. If AI companies cannot train their models without infringing copyright, then they need to pay copyright or find another business model.

We need to protect the work of artists and writers (and publishers, etc), not exploit and steal it for the profit of companies developing AI. This is not in the national interest. Regulations should protect these sectors rather than being trampled in the name of supposed "innovation."

This document is approved for public dissemination. The document contains no business-proprietary or confidential information. Document contents may be reused by the government in developing the AI Action Plan and associated documents without attribution.

Sincerely,
Angela Hunter
