Please consider adding education and workforce training in the development of an AI action plan. This includes formal training of AI experts at the undergraduate and graduate level. Scholarships to these students with possibility of a service obligation to the US government will bolster the government's AI team. Training of the current workforce is also important as AI is becoming more pervasive in every industry - this could be through workshops (online and/or in-person) and could be basic or advanced. Moreover, the community needs to be educated about AI - this could take the form of workshops, talks, etc.
