Artists, writers and other creators deserve to own their own work and benefit from them. NO AI TRAINING should be allowed unless and until they can guarantee only people affirmatively opting in will be sampled for AI training.

In particular, this means that there must be a method by which works shared (such as on Instagram) by people who are not the copyright owners are not treated as the owners for providing consent to AI training.

Only when a work has an embedded tag that specifies it is an opt-in work should that work be allowed to train AI, and EVERY TIME it is used for such a purpose, the original owner of the work must be paid.

Anything less is a brutal injustice.
