To whom it may concern:

I do not believe that AI holds a place in the future of the US. Its utility is overhyped at best. AI systems have shown themselves to be completely incapable of separating truth from fiction. Moreover, these AI models are trained on stolen works for which the creators have not been fairly compensated.

As an artist, I do not consent for works I create to be used to program my replacement. It is maddening that the current administration is even considering allowing AI companies to steal copyrighted works with no compensation to their creators. AI steals from my livelihood and profits off of theft. The AI companies must be stopped, and models created with stolen data must be destroyed.

Sincerely,

Dylan M Dewenter
