

2/19/2025 via FDMS

Ian McInnis

To whom it may concern: America's top AI labs are openly "racing" toward "superintelligence," as are China's labs. We do not know how to control current AIs or give them the right values, and it is vanishingly unlikely that we'll know how to control AIs that can think 10x better and 1000x faster than any human. The leaders of these labs, along with the greatest machine learning researchers in history, agree: odds are high that superintelligence wipes out the human race. Even if we survive, we probably surrender all control of the future to AI, which will effectively be a superior species. Orangutans do not shape history. If superintelligence comes soon, humans will be in the place of orangutans. This race endangers all of humanity, but we can stop. Citizens do not want humans to be obsoleted by the superhuman AI that top labs are explicitly aiming toward and expect to produce soon. We need the infrastructure in place to monitor development, and we need an international treaty to make it worldwide. This is *doable* and *enforceable*. The stakes are as high as anything has ever been. Please. Take some small step now. Lay the groundwork for saving the world. God bless y'all and God bless America.