My name is Aaron. I'm an illustrator and designer and thoroughly opposed to the current trajectory of large language models and machine image generation more commonly known as AI.

As it currently stands the technology is ineffective and dangerous. It's prone to crafting falsehoods and is already being used to create deepfakes that distort our understanding of reality, revenge porn that ruins lives and child sexual assault material that enables the worst kind of abusers. Nevermind we're already seeing evidence it deadens the critical thinking faculties of children and adults who rely on it too heavily.

Furthermore the technology is built on the stolen work of creative people across the world and across time. Copyrighted material that's been illegally fed into these algorithms. This is a technology that should not be moved upon with haste but instead cautiously and in a manner that forces it to be done ethically or not at all.
