To Whom It May Concern:

To the extent that this public comment solicitation is not a joke, I am writing to give my opinion as a citizen of this country. "But I'm going to do something really cool with it" is not a reason to allow theft. The rights of a creator to profit from their own work is surely intrinsic to the statement - it is their own work. I know that tech billionaires have already purchased this morally bankrupt change in law, and that this and all other comments you receive that are against it will be used as so much toilet paper, but Might does not make Right. If AI cannot be trained without such blatant corruption, AI should not be trained.
