Comments to RFI on behalf of OSTP NITRD NCO National Science Foundation
Re Ai Action plan Attn: Faisal D'Souza

Dear Mr D'Souza

As a creative artist, writer and performer now forced to compete with generative AI trained without my consent, license, compensation, permission or even my prior awareness, because it was stolen without prior notice, now being formally ruled unlawful through various court cases setting precedent, I continue to strongly oppose the theft of Americans original creative works by Google, OpenAI, their subsidiaries and/or any other similar company being considered by your office at this time.

One cannot support "Human flourishing, economic competitiveness, or national security" without first protecting the individuals who make human flourishing possible (actual human persons, not algorithms). One does not protect "economic competitiveness" by destroying the right of every American author and artist to own/reserve all rights over their individual original creative works.

"National security" is not at all supported if the people who produce the wealth of our culture and greatest export, are not protected from the predatory actions of Google, OpenAi, and any other future organization attempting to steal from American authors/artists, similarly.

For reasons outlined in this letter, I submit and urge that the USA choose to continue to honor and observe US copyright laws to the full extent, in order to protect each individual creative artist/author against the theft of their original works by corporations whose purpose is centralized control of human endeavors in order to maximize their companies' profits on the backs of creators who made the very works these companies wish to exploit/monetize, without license, for company gains.

Our labor, time, expense, sweat and originality is not for free.

Further, we and our original products are not resources to be mined or pirated and pillaged at will by whomever thinks they can quietly sneak off with it under the radar. That's not the American way, and certainly not what is reflected in the spirit of our American copyright laws, designed to reward, value and encourage new works by creative authors and artists. The unlawful actions of theft by Google and OpenAi work to deplete America's creative treasure by harming artists and discourage new works by them.

Any further profits by such unlawful means to corporations like Google and OpenAi, mean the annihilation of what is critical to our human progress and survival, the protected free expression of individual's thoughts and actions set to form whether written, drawn, spoken, danced, or sung.

Thank you for sincere consideration of this vitally serious matter for the USA and humanity.
