Mankind is rapidly approaching a future cleanly divided by two paths; one which leads to a utopia and the other leading to a dystopia. A fast AI ramp takeoff supported by national investment with strong alignment regulations and a multi-government hardware kill-switch is the best path forward for ensuring that Artificial Superintelligence (ASI) is both safe and beneficial to humanity.

ASI represents the single most important human endeavor, offering solutions to existential risks, scientific frontiers, and economic abundance. However, it is also the most significant national security priority—the first nation or entity to achieve ASI will control the trajectory of global power, economic leadership, and technological supremacy.

To balance rapid progress with safety, a regulatory framework should enforce:

1. Mandatory alignment testing for AI systems, ensuring robust value alignment before deployment.
2. A multi-government-controlled hardware shutoff, providing a last-resort safeguard against misaligned AGI/ASI threats.
3. Taxation of AI entities to fund a Universal Basic Income (UBI), mitigating labor displacement and maintaining societal stability.

ASI will not wait for slow consensus. The first to the finish line dictates the rules. The US government must act decisively to ensure that ASI is developed safely, remains in human control, and is deployed for universal benefit—not just private gain.

Sincerely,

Matthew Fili
