

2/26/2025 via FDMS

Paul Casillas

High quality data acquisition in the form of waveform data from Heart Rate Monitors, Mechanical Ventilators, and other health care devices should be used as training data for AI Machines instead of random sources that were acquired from unverified or unnormalized sources. Development of data pipelines from research hospitals at the VA can improve training of AI Healthcare Assistants.