Hello,

My name is Pepin, and I'm an artist in the US. I've recently left all social media connected with Meta after the quality of the algorithm and user interactions went downhill noticeably downhill. (This would have been around spring of 2024). I do not monetize my art and I have no interest in making my art a career, however, I do fear the greed and laziness of certain corporate oligarchs who seek to steal as much value as possible from living, breathing humans, especially my artist and writer friends who seek to make a living in a market now dominated by AI. Social media platforms are making it harder than ever to opt out of your posted content being fed to AI. AI art and writing, even when fed the best that humans have available, is easily discerned by the trained eye. It looks subpar because it's a machine learning tool's best approximation of creation. It's a program, not an artist, and most importantly to the ultra-rich who seek to expand it, it doesn't need a paycheck. To whoever may read this comment, if you choose to side with the working American people, please do all in your power to resist federal and corporate overreach into our livelihoods. Keep AI protections in place. Thank you.
