Artificial Intelligence sucks. It should be outlawed. Any plan to unleash the private sector in the name of “improving AI” is profoundly and dangerously misguided. This is a snake-oil fad that solves few, if any, problems, but creates nearly limitless others. We should not be beholden to the dull groupthink of glossy-eyed and empty-headed silicon valley executives who have managed to convince themselves of the almighty power of the calculator. They are deluded, and anyone who believes in the importance of AI is deluded. We need to stop shoveling money into this bottomless pit. The action plan should, in a sane world, be to stop wasting time, money, and effort on something so obviously anti-human and ineffectual.
