It is imperative to be on the forefront of AI. Further safeguards for American citizens needs to extend in relation to AI regulations. There are foreign adversaries that will use AI negatively. I therefore suggest social security cards issued as nfts to an individual upon their birth (and retroactively), allowing a clear view of the use of their social security number. These regulations need to go even further that the government needs to secure that everyone has access to their nfts, a wallet if you will. And this will further assist in the security of digital currency attributed to one person for all tax purposes.
