I thoroughly oppose the government allowing AI companies to scrape copyrighted material for training their systems. Art, writing, and music are the cornerstones of American culture. Because art is a mode of communication between humans, nothing produced by an AI could ever BE art in a strict sense, thus the theft of copyright materials, which represent the labor of actual artists, in the creation of art's imitator, serves no purpose but to devalue American cultural labor and put more money in the hands of tech oligarchs.
