Why is the ability to rip off my intellectual property necessary to ensure that unnecessarily burdensome requirements do not hamper private sector AI innovation?

This is, once again, stacking the deck so the tech oligarchs can make money off the backs of people doing creative work. This has absolutely nothing to do with national security. If you want to train AI (and contribute to excessive environmental destruction along the way), hire and pay people to create the input necessary for that training. Giving private companies leeway to steal my intellectual property is unconstitutional.
