Todd Bezenek

I hold BS and MS degrees in electrical engineering (focus on machine learning, 1993) and computer sciences (focus on computer architecture, 2001) and I am likely going to become homeless along with my wife. There are many homeless people in the USA, many of whom are good people, but may not have the educational background that I have. Machine learning (AI) technology and its ease of use in accessing archived information and expressing it in an easy to digest form using large language models represents a way to get those who have no usable skills working again. I would like to see the Trump Presidency find a way to leverage unused US Citizen workers to advance the goals of the wealthy in the USA instead of importing more talent via the H-1B program. Sincerely, Todd M. Bezenek, E.I.T.
