To Whom It May Concern:

CRITICAL NEED: The government must prioritize and fund a comprehensive AI literacy project for education, and it must do so NOW. The consequences of inaction are dire. We risk creating a society reliant on AI without understanding its capabilities or limitations. We need citizens who can leverage AI for innovation, not become passive consumers. This requires immediate funding for education programs that focus on prompting, machine learning, creative applications, and the necessary reforms within our educational system. 2025 demands AI literacy as a core competency. Without immediate funding, our schools will be unable to adapt, leaving students drastically unprepared for the future.
